1. Space Stage 2. Civilization Stage 3. Tribal Stage 4. Creature Stage 5. Cell Stage Yeah, Space is definitely the best. Civ and Tribal was a tossup, but I guess Civ is a little bit better.

Rank the stages from best to worst... - Spore Message

The cell stage is the first part of your spore journey and plays a lot like Pac-Man. The goals are simple: "eat or be eaten" and find parts to upgrade your cell, with the eventual goal of evolving onto land.

Spore/Cell Stage " StrategyWiki, the video game

Spore is especially complex in this regard, because the relationship between the user and the beings on the computer screen varies considerably across the four stages. In the cell and creature stages, the user is represented on screen by one organism, thus by a bonafide avatar. The tribal and civilization stages require the user to operate groups of characters, rather than just one. While the user may emotionally identify with the chief of a tribe in the tribal stage, this character is not ...

Sporulation in Bacteria: Beyond the Standard Model

Spore is a life simulation game where you can create a single cell and then guide it through the evolutionary process over the course of thousands of years. Spore was created by Will Wright, creator of The Sims and SimCity. It was one of the first games to rely heavily on user-based content. Other players have created thousands of items that you can access and implement in the game.

games. In its cell and creature stages, Spore is a role-playing game, whereas in its tribal and civilization stages, it is a strategy game. The two different kinds of game encourage very different emotional responses to the characters. Presumably, however engaged the player of a strategy game may be, there is less personal investment in any single character than in a role-playing game. This ...
